

TODD ANDERSON

Owner of Dream Recovery

By Chase Avellan

TODDS BACKGROUND

- Former College and NFL Football Player
- Todd played football for Michigan State as a full back and ended up playing in the NFL for the Rams for a brief time.
- When he was done with his football career he wanted to focus on the importance of athlete's health.
- He prioritized sleep health and made it his goal to help others with his research, he then created his company DREAM.

DREAM

- After Todd was finished with the NFL he bounced around a few strength and conditioning jobs but knew he wanted to do something more.
- He ended up being the founder of his company DREAM which specializes in sports medicine specifically sleep health and management.
- Todd's Company is now worth $5 million.
- Some of his notable products are mouth tape and nose strips.

SKILLS REQUIRED FOR HIS POSITION AS CEO

- Todd explained that there's a big three that comes to mind when running a company.
- Communication
- Teamwork
- Goals
- These were the foundations for him when he started and he lives by these rules to this day.

REWARDS FROM HIS POSITION

- Todd explained that rewards are as simple as knowing that your helping someone.
- He explained how everytime he'd here about how his products and research improved someones health and well being he said theres no more rewarding feeling that can come out of the job.

MOST CHALLENGING PARTS OF HIS POSITION

- Todd's mindset was focused on consistency whether it's with products or sales his philosophy on how to run a company is to keep up with the long term goals for DREAM.
- Also have a care factor, he explains that for him he gets to wake up and do what he loves everyday and that's what keeps him going.
- Patience was another big thing for him, at times he finds himself and his patience to not be on the same page and his belief is to be successful you need to control your patience

SOCIAL MEDIA

- Todd Explained how its like a double edged sord, on one hand it can be super helpful to reach so many people and get his message out there but then there can be people out there who may not be fans of the company, theres always a push and pull.
- Todd also has a podcast that he loves to promote his products on
- He has over 300k followers with his own account and company

DIFFERENT APPROACHES

- I asked Todd if he could do it all again would he have done anything differently?
- He said no immediately as he believes everything happens for a reason and that no matter what has happened and the downs and ups hes experienced he said he wouldn't have changed a thing
- He emphasized the "Butterfly effect" and that he needed his steps to grow.

HIS ADVICE

- Todd advice for someone who wants to get into any sports industry is to just do it and do it now.
- Start early and get your foot in the door don't be scared to make mistakes and try not to follow others, he said everyones path is different and success comes in all shapes and sizes

THANK YOU